

Working Toward Change

The Poultry Meat Sector's Commitment to the UN Sustainable Development Goals

Zero Hunger

The global poultry meat sector can help achieve zero hunger by providing sustainable, nutritious, and healthy food. Key actions are improving poultry production and product management, and promoting sustainable poultry consumption

Climate Action

The global poultry meat sector can take action to combat climate change by reducing emissions and addressing climate impacts. Key actions are promoting low-emission technologies and practices, increasing efficiencies and optimising logistics, and engaging with supply chain partners.

Responsible Consumption and Production

Industry, Innovation and Infrastructure

The global poultry meat sector can help build and foster industry, innovation, and infrastructure. Key actions are supporting innovation that delivers higher efficiency and sustainability, along with promoting research on more sustainable full-cycle production systems.

Decent Work & Economic Growth

Good Health & Well-being

The global poultry meat sector and its products can help achieve good human health by focusing on sustainable consumption, biosecurity, and animal health. Key actions are promoting poultry meat on school menus, and sharing best practices to reduce disease risks and manage animal and human health issues.

Quality Education

The global poultry meat sector can help achieve quality education around sustainable poultry production and the consumption of poultry products. Key actions are working with partners to improve poultry production, biosecurity, and health issues, along with reducing losses and waste along the supply chain.
